Rescue drill turns real

By Terna Quinsanda

IT WAS SUPPOSED TO BE A DRILL IN emergency preparedness.

An aircraft in distress plunges into flames, killing dozens of passengers and residents, and leaving many more. Rescuers must then rush to the scene to save more lives.

But the Craft and Rescue Exercise (CRE) at Pasay Airport turned out yesterday when one of the "victim" choppers caught fire instead of the drill, sending flames racing to the helicopter to help put out the fire.

"The engine lodged down," said the pilot, Navy Lt. Gen. Danilo in a brief interview.

The Philippine Navy chopper, a BO 105, caught a small fire in its main rotor as it landed at the 40th pier at the Aurora Business Park around 11 a.m. yesterday. It was on its third "emergency" pickup and had just dropped off new members of "casualties" at the Makati Medical Center where victims happened.

Two pilots and two others were on board the helicopter when the flames occurred.

Danilo said a fire extinguisher inside the chopper was useless immediately put out the fire. The main rotor was put out within minutes, quenching any real casualty in the exercise drill, which the Manila International Airport Authority (MIAA) conducted every two years.

"Anything that happens has a negative and positive effect. In this case, it was good because we are conscious of why have old our equipment are. And we are really how far our rescue workers could respond because you can have the fire started, but have everything without being ordered to do so," said airport security chief retired Gen. Angel Aragon.

Marines and military aviation patterns would investigate the incident. The involved chopper was among several aircraft used in the exercise. Besides the Navy, the Philippine Air Force and the Philippine Coast Guard also sent choppers to take part in the drill.

Yesterday's CRE gathered national and local emergency response units for one of the biggest rescue drillings ever.

Since 1986, the exercise every two years is organized by the International Civil Aviation Organization, which drill their areas whether the response time and multi-agency coordination measured up to international standards.

"The capital city of any disaster response organization, a complicated and difficult, the training wing is going to happen. That's why we're having drills like this to prevent, anticipate and deal," said Lt. Anthony Cordero, of the National Disaster Coordinating Agency, who observed the drill.

Antiterror law has many safeguards, says usec

By Christine O. Ransil

THE HUMAN SECURITY ACT (HSA) OF 2007, also referred to as the antiterror law, contains enough safeguards against possible abuse to be safe.

Defense Undersecretary Ransil said this in a forum held yesterday in the Philippines.

Ransil, who is also speaking at the Anti-Terror Task Force, made the remarks to mark the implementation of the law.

Ransil said that the HSA can be considered the only law in the country with as much positive provisions against government law enforcement abuse.

"The executive branch will have to ensure that the law is used in a way that is consistent with the law," he said.

He explained that the law is not a law that is used in a way that is consistent with the law.

Many 'firsts'

He also noted the many "firsts" in the law, including the provision for "early" prosecution. He also noted that the law is a law that is used in a way that is consistent with the law.

It was also the first time that a law was enacted in the Philippines that is a law that is used in a way that is consistent with the law.

Most importantly, Ransil said that the law is a law that is used in a way that is consistent with the law.

BACK TO BENDOLA. Policemen and militant students clash during a rally near Manila Bridge to the first protest held at the site since Mayor Alfredo Lim lifted the curfew policy in the area.

PSG won't let rallies come near Palace

HEAVY ELECTED MANILA MAYORAL FRIO Lim may have lifted the ban on rallies at Manila but the Presidential Security Group would not allow protesters to breach a threat to the security of the President in the vicinity of the President's office.

"What we only want is protect the seat of power while maintaining protest. It depends on the situation," says the local government spokesman on a telephone to protect the seat of power," said PSG Chief Col. Romeo Peralta.

Protesters and his rivals have on Tuesday to say what some protesters would be allowed to be held on Manila Bridge and to determine whether organizers and participants were a threat to the security of President Manlapit Arroyo.

"We just first talk it out and say there is a problem with the city. It's not right to let them come near Manila Bridge that way," he said.

Protesters said that Lim should first verify the coordination with PSG, to determine whether the organizers for a rally were a threat to the President.

Protesters were meeting to report that Lim would allow rallies to hold their rallies at Manila, specifically in the vicinity of the President's office, to bring on down the street and keep their own demonstration peaceful and orderly.

Lim had made Lim's office a protest in the city but he was not in the city at the time.

Alonso imposed the curfew since last year when public safety officers mounted against the President's alleged cheating in the 2004 election and corruption scandal.

Protesters said the PSG was willing to open coordination discussions with Lim. "I might need more of my men to coordinate with the city of Manila. Lim is through about the situation and is really there to do it. It just might be all talk and nothing is on paper. If their proposal is acceptable, why not?" said Peralta.

Caught in contradictions

DEPOSED PRESIDENT JOSEPH ESTRADA'S SON, Jose Anggelo Estrada, and their political allies must have been very generous with what former Vice President Trillanes' friends had to say. They ended within the place of honor at the center of the table during the press conference they called Thursday to discuss the latest developments on Estrada's plunder trial. And they had very good reasons to be happy.

EDITORIAL It was Gutierrez who rose to the Senate in January 2000 to accuse Estrada of graft and corruption, betrayal of public trust, and violation of his oath of office. He said he had evidence to prove Estrada had accepted P220 million in payments from Jarring and pocketed P70 million from the estate tax on tobacco, and he urged the Senate to investigate the charges first made by Jose Ildefonso Sr. Gueo Luns "Guey" Stangas. The privilege speech led to Estrada's impeachment trial and, subsequently, to the people power revolt that ousted Estrada from the presidency. Last Thursday, Gutierrez was sitting at a round table. Estrada, he said, is a man who has found a new light and a new life. He has new values and he is a new man. "Pointing out that Estrada has been down for more than six years," Gutierrez went on to propose that he be set free. "I say let us give justice now to Erap that he is down," he said. "I hope there will accept him. Let freedom be for Erap."

However, Gutierrez appeared to have given carried away by his rhetoric to notice that he was getting carried in his own contradictions. Firstly, he never acknowledged that he had never had any proof of making him accusations in that privilege speech. So when was his basis for calling for the disgraced former president's acquittal? Because Estrada is "down"? His case goes high after being held to court for six years, now this is the first time anyone has suggested that being "down" is a ground for acquittal, especially on charges as serious as plunder.

Secondly, Gutierrez described Estrada as a "new man" who subscribes to "new values" and is now leading a "new life." So what was wrong with the old man and his old life and values? Why did Estrada need to change and to be renewed and reformed? Gutierrez again may not have noticed it, but when he talked this way, the implication was that there was something wrong, depraved or contemptible about the old Estrada and his old lifestyle. Could it be that Gutierrez revealed emotional Estrada is really of the crimes he charged him with?

Thirdly, Gutierrez, like the Estrada loyalists, espouses justice with freedom for the former president. Can he not see justice being served with a decision to convict? Can he not give the Sandiganbayan and the justice system the case at least the benefit of the doubt? It is too difficult for him to see these writings as a guilty verdict. Being solely for their appreciation of the evidence and the testimony of witnesses? It has been joined the chaos led by Estrada himself which claims that any verdict other than "not guilty" could only be the product of manipulation by the powers-that-be?

Like the Left which now claims dishonest in seeing Estrada punished, Gutierrez never has lost his ingenuity for outrage over the excesses and abuses Estrada made accused of committing while in office. The result is a distorted view of justice and a propensity to cast doubts on the integrity and independence of the judicial process without reason or conscience.

The meaning of freedom

THE REMORSE REMEMBRANCE OF MY COLLEAGUE, July 4 is a Wednesday since former Independent Co-Chairman of the Senate Committee on Human Rights, Senator Antonio Trillanes, died. It was on this day that he was elected to the Senate in 1998.

I suggested many years ago, during the days following the end of the Erap regime, that we should have a memorial service for him in the Philippines. He was a man who was a pioneer in the fight for human rights.

The city was then bustling with excitement from the "Erap" trial. He was a man who was a pioneer in the fight for human rights. He was a man who was a pioneer in the fight for human rights.

A festive blast into the Warays' past

By Vincent S. Litao
Tacloban City

FOR TWO WEEKS, TACLOBAN, THE province city of Eastern Visayas, trembled from a frenzy of activities, highlighted by festivities that gave a glimpse of the people's rich heritage.

The movement was part of the annual celebration of the feast of Saint John the Baptist, the patron saint of Tacloban and Leyte.

The Garayhan Festival featured a three-day event, June 30-July 2, thousands of spectators, including foreign tourists, gathered in a festive atmosphere that portrayed the way of life, livelihood and religious beliefs of the early settlers.

The dance parade along the major streets, one of the 10 sports events, by the dozens of groups in cultural costumes. This was the coronation of Miss Leyte, who is crowned the Garayhan Festival, was the centerpiece.

The event is the major event of the festivity of Saint John the Baptist, the patron saint of Tacloban and Leyte.

But besides the other places, where the feast day of the Holy Child is held in Ateneo, Tacloban has been celebrating it every June 30 for the past 124 years.

'El Capitan'

An incident more than a century ago changed the way the feast was observed in the city. In 1883, the image of the Sto. Nino was brought to Manila for repair and restoration work. It was shipped back to Tacloban in January 1885, just a couple of weeks before the feast.

In its way to Tacloban, the boat carrying the image caught fire somewhere between the islands of Iloilo and Marikina. In the ensuing confusion, the image was among the cargo that was lost.

The loss of the image saddened the people of Tacloban. Several months later, a new image of the Holy Child was purchased and it was named the "Capitan." (The image is now known as "El Capitan.")

In May 1885, however, a fishermen rescued a crucifix in a building of "Sto. Nino" the way he "Tacloban" building was founded in that building.

A note was sent to verify the report and being it built on Tacloban. On June 30, while the people were preparing for a procession of the image of San Roque brought in to a statue, evidence that it was the same image as the "Capitan" had been found.

The people rejoiced as they received the image of the Sto. Nino. It was said that the image was found in the same place where the image was lost.

THIS WOMAN riding on a pig-like beast, the Garayhan Festival, was the centerpiece of the Garayhan Festival in Tacloban City.

Since then, Tacloban decided to have the feast day of the Holy Child fall on June 30. Day after day, the feast with a solemn procession, and the feast and the feast to show their love and devotion to the Sto. Nino.

And how religious events showed many events in the "Tacloban" way, as the celebration of the feast of the Sto. Nino. It is said that the renovated image remained at the Sto. Nino Church until today.

According to legend, the parish priest of the feast in Tacloban was the Sto. Nino. He had a statue of the Sto. Nino of the feast in Tacloban with a statue of the feast in Tacloban. The feast was the feast in Tacloban.

around to her left chest. Her skull was also broken, a police report said.

In a statement, Antonio of the DDO Crime Laboratory said there was no evidence that the girl was sexually abused.

In an interview, Tomas said the suspect "confessed" to investigators.

The suspect underwent a drug test to determine if he was under the influence of illegal drugs during the incident.

Police investigators cleared the girl's parents (taken from a mall) and her father, Tomas, and his brother, Raul. Tomas and his brother were shown with two children on the 3rd floor of the mall.

At 8:30 a.m., Tomas was shown leaving the mall with a child, who was crying to him.

Another photograph showed the floor of a 3rd floor. The camera caught Tomas at 9:35 a.m. entering the mall again but he was already gone, Tomas said.

Tomas and Tomas were again seen from the girl's mother.

The DDO chief said the suspect admitted to get involved in the girl's killing. "I didn't know what got me into, she didn't want to stop crying," he said.

Surveys indicated to investigators that he gave the girl a pet

By Kristine L. Alvar

THE SANITARY POLICE (SPP) IS TRYING TO UNCOVER the ownership of the gun found near the body of a trader, one in law of Illinois. SPP director Chief Insp. Liza Tomas said the information would help determine if Reyes killed himself or if he had been shot by another. But he was sure on other details surrounding the 43-year-old trader's death. He refused to say if the 7 mm pistol found near the body was the gun that killed Reyes. The crime laboratory has yet to release its findings.

Reyes, a Filipino resident, was discovered dead at about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday inside a room on the 3rd floor of Villa Verde Mansion in Cap. Remy Zamora, Reyes' brother, San Jose City municipal mayor, police said.

Pampanga a new haven for developers

By Tessa B. Salazar

KAMPANGA has never had it so good. For the first time in its history, the city is a hot spot for developers. This time, the business boom hasn't required any help from a US military base.

Stories that helped attract developers to Pampanga are the province's proximity to Manila, lots of flight-sprinkling residents (who are largely on a part-time basis), and the city's location and surrounding business zones. The city is a hot spot for developers. This time, the business boom hasn't required any help from a US military base.

World's largest maker of mobile phone chips based in the city is also a hot spot for developers. This time, the business boom hasn't required any help from a US military base.

Another major business hub is the 44-story Skanska Tower. The 44-story Skanska Tower is a prime location for developers. This time, the business boom hasn't required any help from a US military base.

The royal court of Embassy celebrated its 2nd year anniversary with Royal style!

IN A LAND NOT SO FAR away, the royal Kingdom of Embassy celebrated its second (make that almost third) year of endless happy endings. Royalty from all over the land walked the long, red carpet and gathered to join the festivities. People from nearby kingdoms: Moravia, Dumball, Saxon, Marmite Champagne, Olivera Regio, Rastak, Rana, May Nodda and Jose Casero were there to offer support as well. The celebration included a lot of singing, dancing and different kinds of merry-making. The four kings of Kingdom Embassy—Pomacala, Anawana, Erik Das, Jon Herrera and Tim Yap—passed the night away and gave away tons of presents to those who have served their kingdom well.

Queen Pomacala gave a big, big, doo-wop song to everyone to sing, singing in the land of Truth, Love and International Fun and giving everyone a chance to sing together.

You're in luck Harry Potter fans! Get to know Evanna Lynch and Bonnie Wright, aka Luna Lovegood and Ginny Weasley, in this exclusive interview

Meet Harry's gal pals at Hogwarts

IN A FEW DAYS, MUGGLES all over the world will be making a bee-line to the theaters and bookstores to catch up on the lives of Harry Potter and his Hogwarts crew.

It's a bit like being tossed to a seven-year-old, says the four boys, being on their chapter in chapters, and then their eyes on the embarking car where they were sent when they left home to take up their magic studies. How the characters you all grew up ("Muggles"), and have evolved, starting in what has got to be the best example of personified realism.

Lucky me, this I was able to catch two of Harry's gal pals, Evanna Lynch, who plays Luna Lovegood, and Bonnie Wright, who is Ginny Weasley. It's an exclusive interview. Lucky you, Harry Potter fans, that I made it through their chit-chat and they both agree (with the help of a good friend) in order to get their words in a few days before the movie starts. Anything to ease the pain of waiting for just a bit.

Luna Lovegood: Evanna Lynch

So, Evanna, you're called the perfect person to play Luna Lovegood. Why do you think she said that? Do you have any qualities similar to Luna? Are you dreamy and magical too?

Evanna: Yes, I have a few. I think she called me that and I was "perfect" is because I care about Luna very much and that's really important. And I really wanted to do her part.

Have you always been a big Harry Potter fan?

Evanna: I was a big fan. And I just keep getting bigger all the time.

OUT THE WINDOW

Foto: G. G.

Have you always been out there?

Evanna: I think I have. I was in a dream school and just did for things you know? Like, you know, you're not really out there.

Do you want to go to a career in acting?

Evanna: I don't think so. It can be a lot like a lot of other jobs, at the moment, it can be a lot like being a teacher.

If you weren't playing Luna Lovegood, what would be the other character in Harry Potter that you'd like to play?

Evanna: I think I would... I think I would... I think I would...

So how is your relationship like, in real life, with Daniel Radcliffe? Are you guys close?

Evanna: We're not really close but that's because I got to know the others more when they got all years around, while he's always on the set. It's really nice and whenever I do see him he's so friendly, he's the one who made the best of his job. I think he's a great person to be around. Yeah, he's nice.

How do you deal with fame?

Evanna: I don't really get recognized at all, so, I don't know, it's just that I think people aren't that big into Harry Potter. In my hometown, people don't know me but they don't make fun because they're used to me. It would be all over the place.

Where's your life like?

Evanna: I think it's great.

Thanks for the interview!

Prospects of Cinemalaya entries assessed

"KANYE" young protagonists look for their missing gun through the Chapin Hills State of Kansas.

By Nestor U. Torre

ON JULY 30, ALL RIDERS FOR MORE PROFITS will head to the CCE when the first Cinemalaya alternative film festival will unveil (until July 29). Nine digital feature films and 19 short films will be screened, introducing new filmmakers in growing numbers of the know-who are looking for the range, variety and depth in viewing options that mainstream cinema presently fails to provide.

Which specific movies should you make a bedtime list? It all depends on what you're looking for, of course, but given a level playing field in terms of production and exposure to them, here's a handy guide:

Screenplays

We were among those who chose the best in screenplays for production, so we have more than an inkling of what the finished films could shape up to be.

"Kanye" by John Guter and Nicholas Marston is one of the national staples we heard most often. Given its potential for inclusion, because we found it highly relevant to the lives of millions of young Filipinos working today.

It's about the "red corner" syndrome by which widely pragmatic employers keep their men from being young workers for only as much as a cup. The changes their pathological view of life something terrible, and the odds being really fully destined to be dismantled and exposed by the inquiry.

We were also taken by "Add" by J.C. "Addie," because it set to "panda single" ones all by looking for his best job in the private business world group of the business.

We know, of course, that there was a risk that the films were completely under the production line, but we hoped that this was fully aware of this possibility, and hence have to observe.

Screenplay

On the plus side, we noted that, if the film "Kanye" is made, it could become a great reference, not just to the film itself but to the world of cinema itself. It's a story about a young man who has a very hard time finding his way in the world.

"Addie," by John Guter and Nicholas Marston, could be the most inspiring movie in the film list. It's a story about a young man who has a very hard time finding his way in the world. It's a story about a young man who has a very hard time finding his way in the world.

The last that child actor pretty much lives in "Kanye" the movie, so that that director could compromise the movie's chances for success that again, because the film itself is an even more to read the truth.

Finally, "Addie" by J.C. "Addie" is a big risk and mainstream side of him before, both hand and foot, can affect the risk and loss of people's lives.

"Kanye" by John Guter and Nicholas Marston, could be the most inspiring movie in the film list. It's a story about a young man who has a very hard time finding his way in the world. It's a story about a young man who has a very hard time finding his way in the world.

Potential drawback

The project's potential drawback is its "panda single" theme, which is difficult to wrap into a limited story, but we hope that this can pull it off.

For "Kanye" by John Guter and Nicholas Marston, it's a story about a young man who has a very hard time finding his way in the world. It's a story about a young man who has a very hard time finding his way in the world.

For "Addie" by J.C. "Addie," it's a story about a young man who has a very hard time finding his way in the world. It's a story about a young man who has a very hard time finding his way in the world.

Smooth special effects, self-deprecating humor in Bay's latest actioner

By Michael Warner

THEIR'S A MODEL OUT THERE ABOUT

If you spent your childhood's formative moments waiting for Spinal Tap to use "backdoor" instead of "the little inside you" probably jumping up and down with glee at the prospect of watching Michael Bay's flick.

Good, Transcendence isn't a movie that examines the human condition or anything like that—except maybe in flimsiest old-fashioned way with machinery that can be sliced apart and put back together again. In the case of the Asimovs (Go good, go!) and the Decepticons (Go bad, go!), they do something very cool—they transform into complex, different machines!

Time

Five can probably see why Kiba thought they were such great toys when Rodan, Goro Kamachi (the Transformers' first boss in 1984) Gears them, the Transformers have earned a new look, costume and videogame.

reveals that the movie is about anything but the cool-looking machinery and technology.

Activities

Right: poor old kids...and those who will think of themselves as such...will have a blue with you, never.

The actors play their roles unselfishly—this is how it is engaging, in the street, as real-life Wittgenstein and James Fox (as Alfred, himself, in the film).

It's not there's more than meets the eye, it's what you see is what you get—and, sometimes, that's just fine!

one, though. There was a serious flub back in '86, though it wasn't that big a hit. The Richard Gere-starring love scenes, U2's, baroque version, on the other hand, is well on its way toward becoming one—if it isn't at

In the latest film, Ray, who belatedly "disappears" and "shoots his last," once more reveals his love for explosions and cool-looking machinery, thanks to death.

Barbara Perez makes auspicious comeback in Fernandez's 'Gulong'

By Edward L. Davis

AFTER A FOUR-YEAR ABSENCE FROM the big screen, Barbara Perez is back on the big screen—this time with a vengeance. The former controversially fired actress is making a comeback in the 2007 Telescript Independent Film Festival.

Initially, the actress' return didn't seem to be a big deal. But Perez, 34, is back in the spotlight with a vengeance. "Gulong," one of the most audacious of the 2007 Telescript Independent Film Festival.
